 For High Bailiff—JULIUS HALLBERG, of Fairfax.

A Pleasant Trip.

About as pleasant a trip as one can take, if he wishes for variety of beautiful scenery, good traveling accommodations by railroad, boat, and stage, and excellent hotel fare, is the round trip which may be made on the Vermont Central railroad, and Vermont and Canada road to Waterloo; from thence by a good line of stages, with careful drivers, to Magog; from Magog to Newport by boat; from Newport to White River Junction by the Passumpsic railroad; and if he lives in St. Albans, or on the line of the Vermont Central road, by that road home. By such a trip, which may pleasantly fill three days or a month, as inclination prompts, more pleasure and health can be secured than are dreamed of in some philosophies. More beautiful scenery is also brought to view than we know of in any circuit of travel of the same distance. It is not to be described—only actual experience can give any fair idea of the abundant beauties of such a travel-ring. From St. Johns to Magog, at the foot of that wonderfully clear and charming lake, Memphremagog, the way is wild and through a new country, but travel over it prepares the mind for better appreciation of the scenery of the lake; and occasionally on the way one is encouraged by the vision of a quiet little stream or pond, like that which is the source of the Missisquoi, or like Orford Pond, at the foot of Orford mountain. Then nothing can be more delightful than the trip on Lake Memphremagog, on the Lady of the Lake. Her commander, Capt. Fogg, knows the lake as a farmer does his land, and will give all information desired; and her purser, Mr. Merrill, will be found equally accommodating and gentlemanly. The boat itself is a staunch and fast one, making two trips from Newport to Magog and back each day, at a speed of about eighteen miles per hour. The ride over the Passumpsic and Vermont Central roads afford many views of scenery which are worth a long journey to see, and the accommodations of these roads are all that can be desired. We should not omit to state, also, that Mr. Cooley's stages from Waterloo to Magog take you through on time, and that Mr. Wood and Mr. Hewson, the drivers, know their business thoroughly, and perform it to the satisfaction of all reasonable people. If you want information of the country through which you ride, and lots of stage gossip, take a seat with them on the box. We saw a lady looking cosy and happy tucked down beside one of them not long since, her eyes sparkling with mirth and her cheeks made rosy with the mountain air.

If that American apostle, Beecher, can consistently institute vacations of service in his church, to enjoy summer travel, we may surely meet with favor in recommending a trip over the route we have described. It is cheap—very, to an editor—and pleasant; and there is sometimes profit in pleasure. Don't take a Saratoga trunk.

For the Transcript.

Old Maids

Do not receive the consideration that is their due. People make an improper distinction between those who are unmarried from necessity and those who are such from choice. The truth is there are few if any who remain in a state of "single blessedness," from necessity. Where is there a woman of any respectability who has had no opportunity of becoming a wife. The majority, probably, eagerly embrace the first chance—some because they hate to say no, some because they fear the dreadful probability of not soon enjoying a similar opportunity—some because their hearts are satisfied with the treasure of affection they have secured. Among these wives, how many are as happy as they would have been if they had not been afraid of being "old maids?" I doubt whether there are many who refuse to marry because of any natural or acquired aversion to the "holy estate of matrimony." Doubtless there are some, while there are more who do not marry because they have not found, as yet, those who could gain their love, and to many without being able to give the heart with the hand, is abhorrent to their natures. Others there are, who are true to some love that has entranced them in the past—some old sweet memory, to which they cling so fondly that they cannot disengage themselves from the spell that holds them with resistless power. Some deny themselves the possible happiness of the marriage relation, that they may minister to the comfort of those whom Providence has made dependent upon them for care and happiness. I know of an angel of this class who, as daughter and sister, has sacrificed the usual aspirations of youth to her sense of duty, and has grown old in her beautiful devotion to those to whom she has given up her life in self-sacrificing and heavenly ministrations. "Marriage is honorable," but it is by no means "the chief end of man" or woman either. It has almost unbounded possibilities of happiness, and of misery likewise. When two are united, who have found themselves "all the world" to each other, words can but clumsily describe their enjoyment. If, on the contrary, they, though legally one are morally "twain" how can any body tell the misery implied in their apparent union?

The number of disappointed ones among the single is very small, even proportionately compared with the disappointed, disgusted and really broken-hearted among the married.

Bear this in mind, you, whom in derision, mischief or merriment the world heartlessly call "old maids." You are not as "old," very likely, as you would have been, if you had been married. Your hearts have not been worn out by unrequited affection. You have not been the slaves of selfish, exacting, unappreciating tyrants. At all events, you have not thrown yourselves away upon unloved and unworthy husbands just to escape the irritating epithet "old maid," as multitudes of your sisters have done. You know just as well as I do, that girls without number, are every year married to men they do not, cannot love, just to escape the senseless honor of being "old maids," destined to weep or worry their poor lives away in unavailing regrets, sighing vainly for the bliss you have too much wisdom and delicacy to resign. Some marry for a home. You have not done that. If pleasure withholds from your path any one, to whom you cannot give all your heart, and who, withal is worthy of your love, remain as you are. Marriage belongs to this life. It is the most delightful of earthly relations, when all its conditions are fulfilled, but, at best, it is temporary. "In heaven they are neither married nor given in marriage," and I do not know as we have any reason to believe that Paul is less happy there than Peter. Married people indulge the pleasing delusion that, though separated by Death, for a time, they will renew their relation and go to "keeping house" again, in the other world. Well they won't. There will be many a sweet reunion, but not as husbands and wives, will they meet and live together there. They will not be even male and female in heaven. They will be like the "angels."

It is probable that you are peculiarly fitted to make happy wives. You have just ideas of the marriage relation. Because the right one has not found you, you are unmarried. If you had had as low an estimate of the relation as many of your married sisters had, you, like them, would have thrown yourselves away upon some miserable scamp and been among the lost where there is "wailing and gnashing of teeth." Be true to your high and holy ideal! The world has need of your sweet charities. Opportunities of divinest influence abound on every hand. Let a cheery radiance hallow and brighten your presence, and whether your earthly smile ripen into the Heavenly while you are still young, or after you have passed into the "sere and yellow leaf," you will be loved and finally mourned as an angel sister of whom "the world was not worthy."

BENEDICT.

A CORRESPONDENT writes: "To see Niagara, you buy eleven silk dresses for your wife and six shirts for yourself. You then get all the ready money you have, and make arrangements for unlimited credit at two or three good, solvent banks. You then take six trunks, some more money, a nurse a colored servant, some more money, and then, after getting some more money, and extending your credit one or two more strong banks, you set out. It is better, if possible, just before you leave, to mortgage your homestead and get some more money."

THE ELECTION.—The New York Sun counts up 184 electoral votes for Grant 75 for Seymour, and 35 doubtful. The Grant States are Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Carolina, South Carolina, Ohio, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Vermont, West Virginia and Wisconsin. The States reckoned for Seymour are California, Connecticut, Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland, New Jersey, New York and Oregon. Georgia and Pennsylvania are considered doubtful, and Mississippi, Texas and Virginia will not vote.

Truth Stranger than Fiction.

A young man recently ran away from the galleys at Toulon. He was strong and vigorous, and soon made his way across the country, and escaped pursuit. He arrived the next morning before a cottage, in an open field, and stopped to beg something to eat and get a refuge, while he rested a little. But he found the inmates of the cottage in the greatest distress. Four little children sat trembling in the corner, their mother was weeping and tearing her hair, and the father walking the floor in agony. The galley-slave asked what was the matter, and the father replied that they were that morning to be turned out of doors because they could not pay the rent.

"You see me driven to despair," said the father; "my wife and little children without food or shelter, and I without means to provide any for them."

"The convict listened to the tale with tears of sympathy, and said:—
 "I will give you the means. I have but just escaped from the galleys. Who-soever secures and takes back an escaped prisoner is entitled to a reward of fifty francs. How much does your rent amount to?"

"Forty francs," answered the father. "Well," said the other, "put a cord around my body. I will follow you to the city, where they will recognize me, and you will get fifty francs for bringing me back."

"No, never!" exclaimed the astonished listener; "my children should starve a dozen times before I would do so base a thing."

The generous young man insisted, and declared at last that he would go and give himself up if the father would not consent to take him.

After a long struggle the latter yielded, and, taking his preserver by the arm, led him to the city and to the mayor's office. Everybody was surprised that a little man like the father had been able to capture such a strong young fellow; but the proof was before them.

The fifty francs were paid, and the prisoner sent back to the galleys. But after he was gone, the father asked a private interview with the mayor, to whom he told the whole story. The mayor was so much affected that he not only added fifty francs to the father's purse, but wrote immediately to the Minister of Justice begging the noble young prisoner's release.

The minister examined into the affair, and, finding that it was comparatively a small offense which had condemned the young man to the galleys, and that he had already served out half his time, ordered his release. Is not the whole incident beautiful?

From the Corinthian (Miss.) Centinel, July 22.
Frightened to Death by a Vision.

A strange and surprising incident occurred last week in the country some miles north of Corinth. A Mr. Mangrum killed a young man during the war, and a few days since Mr. Mangrum was on a deer drive, and while at one of the stands he saw an object approaching him which so alarmed him that he raised his gun and fired at it. The object, which resembled a man covered with a sheet, continued to advance upon Mr. Mangrum, when he drew his pistol and emptied all the barrels at the ghost.

None of the shots seeming to take effect, he climbed a tree to make his escape. By the time he was a short distance up the tree the white object was standing under him with its eyes fixed upon him, and he declared that it was the spirit of the young man whom he had killed. Mangrum was startled at the steady gaze of the eye that he had been the cause of laying cold in death, that he fainted and fell from the tree. His friends carried him home, the ghost following and standing before him constantly, the sight of which brought up the recollection of his guilt with such force to his mind, that he died in great agony, after two or three days' suffering.

Special Notices.

Missisquoi Springs.

OBERLIN, June 23d, 1868.

E. B. PECKHAM, Esq.,
 Dear Sir:—I take the liberty to write you, asking how they are getting along at the Missisquoi Springs. Whether they are fitting up any hotels, and what the price of board is per week. Write me full particulars, all about the Springs. My health is first rate. I am as sound as I ever was. The cancer on my face is all off, and as smooth as it ever was. There are other parties that want to go to the Springs this Summer. By writing you will much oblige me. Tell Mr. Wright I am much obliged to him for his courtesy in writing to me.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
 JOHN E. TALLMAN.

The certificate you notice says that I commenced the use of the Missisquoi Spring water on the 7th of May, and continued till the analysis of the Yt. Spring; or I might have said more precisely till the last of October, at which time I used up the last of the water I had from you, which was a part of that bottled to me by you as I referred to October 5th at the commencement of this letter. I will say that I don't think I would have lived but a few weeks had it not been for the timely use of the Missisquoi Spring Water, and said so to your agent, and many others there last summer.

Very Respectfully, Yours,
 J. B. CLARK.

Errors of Youth.

A GENTLEMAN who suffered for years from a nervous debility, and premature decay, and the effects of youthful indiscretion, will, for the sake of suffering humanity, send free to all who need it, the receipt and directions for making the simple remedy by which he was cured. Sufferers wishing to profit by the advertiser's experience, can do so by addressing, in perfect confidence, JOHN B. CLARK, 166-ly 42 Cedar Street, New York.

CANCER, SCROFULA, DYSPEPSIA, LIVER COMPLAINT, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, &c., cured. A Book of 100 pages, sent free to invalids. Address R. GREENE, M. D., 10 Temple Place, Boston, Mass.

Information.

Information guaranteed to produce a luxuriant growth of hair upon a bald head or a beardless face, also a recipe for the removal of pimples, blotches, eruptions, etc., on the skin, leaving the same soft, clear, and beautiful, can be obtained without charge by addressing THOS. P. CHAPMAN, 66-ly 823 Broadway, New York.

ADDRESS TO THE NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED, whose sufferings have been protracted from hidden causes, and whose cases require prompt treatment to render existence desirable: If you are suffering or have suffered, from involuntary discharges, what effect does it produce upon your general health? Do you feel weak, debilitated, easily tired? Does a little exertion produce palpitation of the heart? Does your liver, or urinary organs, or your kidneys, frequently become the seat of disorder? Is your urine sometimes thick, milky, or bloody, or is itropy on setting? Or does a thick semine rise on the top? Or is a sediment at the bottom after it has stood a while? Do you have spells of short breathing or dyspnea? Are your bowels constipated? Do you have spells of fainting, or rushes of blood to the head? Is your memory impaired? Is your mind constantly dwelling upon this subject? Do you feel dull, listless, mooping, tired of company of life? Do you wish to be left alone to forget misery from everybody? Does any little thing make you start or tremble? Is your sleep broken or restless? Is the lustre of your eye as brilliant? The bloom on your cheek as bright? Do you enjoy yourself in society as usual? Do you pursue your business with the same energy? Do you feel as much confidence in yourself? Are your spirits dull and flagging, given to fits of melancholy? If so do not lay it to your liver or dyspepsia. Have you restless nights? Your back weak, your knees weak, and have you little appetite, and you attribute this to dyspepsia or liver-complaint?

Now, reader, self abuse, venereal diseases, badly cured, and sexual excesses, are all capable of producing a weakness of the generative organs. The organs of generation, when in perfect health, make the man. Did you ever think that these bold, defiant, energetic, persevering, successful business men are always those whose generative organs are in perfect health? And are such men complain of being melancholy, of nervousness, of palpitation of the heart. They are never afraid they cannot succeed in business; they don't become sad and discouraged; they are always polite and pleasant in the company of ladies, and look you and them right in the face—none of your downcast looks or any other weakness about them. I do not mean those inflated by running to excess. These will not only ruin their constitutions, but also those they do business with or for.

How many men, from badly cured diseases, from the effects of self abuse and excesses, have brought about that state of weakness in those organs that has reduced the general system so much as to make almost every other disease—dyspepsia, rheumatism, paralysis, spinal affections, suicide, and almost every other form of disease which humanity is heir to, and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever suspected, and have suffered for all but the right one.

Diseases of these organs require the use of a Diuretic. HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT OF DUCHU is the great Diuretic, and is a certain cure for diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Gravel, Dropsy, Organic Weakness, Female Complaints, General Debility, and all diseases of the Urinary Organs, whether existing in Male or Female, from whatever cause originating, and no matter of how long standing.

If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or Locusts may ensue. Our flesh and blood are supported from these sources, and the health and happiness, and that of Posterity, depends upon prompt use of a reliable remedy.

Helmbold's Extract Buchu, established upwards of 18 years, prepared by H. T. HELMBOLD, Druggist, 64 New York, and 104 South 10th Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Price—$1.25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6.50, delivered to any address. Sold by all Druggists everywhere.

None are genuine unless done up in steel engraved wrapper, with fac-simile of my Chemical Warehouse, and signed H. T. HELMBOLD.

P. O.—Try a box of Peand's Platanin Ointment. The best I've in the World. Take no other, but insist on having this. For sale by all Druggists and Country Dealers.

Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.
 Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup Whooping Cough, Quinsy, and the numerous as well as dangerous diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs, prevail in our changeable climate at all seasons of the year; few are fortunate enough to escape their baneful influence. How important then to have at hand a certain antidote to all these complaints. Experience proves that this exists in Wistar's Balsam to an extent not found in any other remedy; however severe the suffering, the application of this soothing healing and wonderful Balsam at once vanquishes the disease and restores the sufferer to wanted health.

TWENTY YEARS' EXPERIENCE.
 MONROE, VT., June 28, 1868.
 Messrs. S. W. FOWLE & Co., Boston.
 Gentlemen:—Having for twenty years past been in the habit of using Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, in cases of Coughs, Colds, and Pulmonary Affections, I can testify to its great merits with the utmost confidence. I believe it to be the best medicine for these complaints ever used, and have no doubt that the use of it has at three several times saved me from Consumption, besides many times in late years, affording immediate relief in less severe attacks. I am 78 years of age, and for many years have been a subject for pulmonary disease, but by the use of this excellent remedy I keep myself quite comfortable. I can hardly find language to express the exalted opinion I have of the Balsam, and recommend its use to all as the best remedy that can be used. GEORGE DART.
 Prepared by SETH W. FOWLE & SON, 18 Tremont St. Boston, and for sale by Druggists generally.

ACROSTIC.
 Gently it penetrates through every pore,
 Relieving sufferers from each angry sore;
 A lib it wounds it heals with certainty and speed;
 Cuts, Burns, from inflammation soon are freed;
 Eruptions, at its presence disappear;
 Sins lose each stain, and the complexion's clear!
 SALVE, such as GRACE'S every one should buy,
 A lib to its wondrous merits testify,
 Let those who doubt, a single box but try,—
 Verily, then its true deserts 't would have;
 Even unbelievers would laud GRACE'S SALVE!
